ROD & GUN

Chatter

By DONNA BARKDULL

Local nimrods have completely flipped over the recent pigeon find near Idyllwild. Of course they don't think so! Every one goes out running up and down mountains when the worst storm in two years hits the state. Wonder half of them didn't drown in Sunday morning's down-pour. Big secret, the exact location of the pigeon haunt, although I haven't been able to figure out who it's a secret from. By now, just about every bird hunter in Torrance has been up there. Limits easy, better than the opening of dove season in Blyth.

Naturally, recent rains are expected to improve the water-fowl situation at the Salton

Sea and Imperial Valley region. Looks like hunters are still in for plenty of good shooting.

Surf anglers are latching on to some pretty fair barred perch of late. Most action on northern beaches, but local strips are not to be by-passed. One certain enthusiast, name unknown, has really been snaking them in from in front of the Hollywood Riviera, using one particular surf lure instead of the usual sand crab. Have to ask Helen at the Sport Shop just which one. Says he uses 6 pound test line and no sinker, been taking limits right along. Hefty ones at that.

First of the year, beaches will be jammed with ardent anglers getting down to the task of topping previous year's catches. All eager for the run of 2nd St. lunkers. Just hope the new Redondo breakwater is of no importance to the elusive barred perch.

Deep sea sport showed signs of picking up after a lull of a couple of weeks before the storm. Yellowtail, barracuda, bonita and white sea bass provided lots of action up until Saturday. Should still be around and plenty hungry. Weather permitting, live bait boats will continue on their winter schedule. Would really be something to have the popular game fish hang around all winter.
